The Actor’s Fund provides financial and other professional development assistance to people from all aspects of the entertainment/performing arts industry. See especially the Actors’ Fund Work Program and STARRRS.

www.actorsfund.org
http://www.actorsfund.org/services-and-programs/actors-fund-work-program

A handy tool from the Actor’s Fund to search for resources for musicians by category (Financial, Career and Jobs, etc.) and state.

http://www.actorsfund.org/services-and-programs/resources

Although this report by the National Endowment for the Arts does not provide and services, it contains useful information about musician demographics, employment, income, occupations, etc. There is a summary of the findings in the first few pages.

http://www.nea.gov/research/ArtistsInWorkforce.pdf

Creative Capital provides support to artists who pursue innovation in form and/or content in the performing and visual arts, film and video, and in emerging fields. Grants are given in the form of risk capital (as in any traditional venture capital firm), and various forms of professional development services are available as well.

http://www.creative-capital.org/

Fractured Atlas provides financial support for individuals and nonprofits, and also has an online video series on arts business topics.

http://www.fracturedatlas.org/

Interview with psychotherapist Amanda Clayman, who works with artists and their money issues. Includes her advice about creating a financial balance. More at her blog, “the Good, the Bad, and the Money”.

http://fictionwriting.about.com/od/thebusinessofwriting/a/finances.htm http://thegoodthebadandthemoney.blogspot.com/

Minerva Financial Arts is a consulting/financial service for artists and non-profit arts orgs. Provides educational seminars as well. The founder’s book is Arts and Numbers, which is intended to help provide basic financial literacy to those in creative fields. News and Events are also available on the website.

http://minervafinancialarts.com/http://minervafinancialarts.com/arts-numbers/

Arts Finance provides financial services to non-profit arts orgs.

http://artsfinance.com/

Petra Raspel is a life/career/artistic coach for artists/musicians Petra Raspel. Has online services.

http://artistsense.wordpress.com/