WHAT IS A RÉSUMÉ?

A résumé is a formal overview of your past and current professional and educational experience. It should directly and concisely list any experiences related to the teaching position you are seeking. Some description of your experiences may be appropriate, but you should be as concise as possible. Remember, a résumé is not an autobiography – it is an outline of your experiences.

Résumé or CV?

Some people understandably confuse résumés and vitae. The two documents are very similar and many employers use the terms interchangeably. In fact, employers in academia will often ask for a “~~v~~ita” in an employment advertisement when they wish to receive a one to two page document that others might call a résumé.

For practical purposes, this handout will focus on teaching resumes used when seeking K-12 teaching positions. This type of resume should be 1 page long. You should only use 2 pages if you have extensive experience.

Purpose and Importance

Although a résumé is useful in a number of situations, it has two basic purposes. The first is to create in the reader such an interest in you that s/he will want to invite you for an interview or audition. The résumé should serve essentially as an advertisement of and for a product – you! It should make the employer (the “~~bu~~yer”) want to take a closer look. Statistics show that the average employer spends less than 10 seconds scanning a résumé, so the overall design and format of a résumé is important!

The other purpose of a résumé is to encourage potential employers to pay close attention to you when they do meet you or hear you perform. Remember, like a cover letter, a résumé is your representative when you are not present. Thus, it must be perfect – well organized and highly polished. A great résumé alone will not get you a job, but a poor résumé can easily keep you from getting even an interview.

THE FIRST DRAFT...

Résumé Categories

The following is a list of possible categories (in no particular order) that you may wish to include in your résumé.

Look over these categories carefully and decide which ones would best present your professional and educational experience. Most importantly, do not feel compelled to follow a given formula, rather, design and organize your résumé so that it best highlights your experience.

Name	Recordings and Broadcasts
Instrument or Voice Type	Tours
Contact Information Home and/or Work Current/Permanent/After →*’ date Phone numbers Email	Competitions
Education/Training Degree(s) earned (include dates and institutions) Grade Point Average High School Study (if at a major music institution) Major/Principal Teachers Master Classes Professional Certification, Licensure, Accreditation	Professional Leadership Guest Lectures Clinics Presented Professional Presentations Adjudication Publications Student Organization Leadership Other Leadership positions
Teaching Experience Professional Teaching Student Teaching Musical Coaching Private Studio Summer Camps Master Classes Given Clinics Given Non-Music Teaching	Compositions/Arrangements
Performance Experience Solo Experience Solo Orchestral Engagements Recitals Chamber Music Orchestras/Wind Ensembles Jazz/Rock Freelance Voice-Opera, Roles Studied, Musical Theater Conducting-Guest Conducting, Major Conducting Positions	Related Experience Internships Summer Festivals Music-Related Work Experience
	Affiliations/Memberships
	Other Experience Non-Music Related Work Language Proficiency Community Service Volunteer Work Special Skills Collegiate Extracurricular Activities Technology skills and experience
	Honors/Awards Scholarships, Fellowships, and Scholastic Awards Prizes and Grants

Remember that this list is by no means all-inclusive!

Some of the categories may not suit your purposes or needs and you probably won’t have something that fits into every category. Don’t worry!

Many people make the common mistake of selling themselves short. They prejudge their past experience and its inadequacies, often eliminating good, relevant experience before it ever has a chance to get down on paper. To be sure that you weigh your experiences evenly and avoid significant omissions, you should first get everything down on paper, and then decide what to keep and what to omit.

In your first draft, write down everything under the appropriate category titles. Do not eliminate anything in the process. Save the editing of this information until you have a better sense of how you want to lay out your résumé. For now, just keep an open mind!

The following is an example of what a list might look like after a brainstorming session:

FORMAT

Once you have thoroughly brainstormed your past and current experiences, it is time to decide on a format for your résumé. The four most common résumé formats used by musicians are:

- Chronological
- Order of Importance
- Functional
- Targeted

Chronological

A chronological résumé, as the name suggests, lists your work experience in chronological (or more typically, reverse chronological) order. This format enables the reader to track your work history easily, check for gaps of unemployment and visualize your professional growth.

The entire résumé need not be in reverse chronological order. Most people who use this format will have sub-categories; much like those listed in the résumé category section on pages 5-6, and will arrange information in reverse chronological order only within each category.

Order of Importance

With this format, experiences are listed in the order of importance to the reader, enabling him/her to see your most relevant and impressive information first. This form is almost always used for performance résumés.

Functional

A functional résumé highlights your skills, abilities and accomplishments rather than the places where you obtained them. Past work experience should be listed separately, but the focus is on skills and identifying those that are transferrable to the job to which you are applying. This format is not commonly used for music positions.

Targeted

A targeted résumé is not as much of a format as it is a style. It is often eclectic, using characteristics of each of the first three formats, and is used most often to produce a highly focused résumé for a very specific job. Most performance résumés are targeted résumés; that is, they eliminate all peripheral information and discuss the only two things that readers/auditioners are interested in: training and performance experience.

A targeted résumé does not have to be limited to performance jobs. Any résumé that you are writing solely for a specific job would be a targeted résumé.

SELLING YOURSELF

Confidence and Experience

Some people develop résumés that come off as either too arrogant or too shy. You should strive to find an honest medium. The general rule for writing résumés is “don’t hold back.” In other words, sell yourself – show potential employers how good you are. However, don’t embellish. If what you set down on paper is the truth and is presented in a factual, professional manner, you need not worry about appearing too arrogant.

“Résumé” Language

A good résumé communicates professionalism and energy to a potential employer, not only by its form and content but also by its style. The language you use to represent yourself can make a reader want to know more about you, so choose your words carefully. Try out several ways of characterizing your experience and decide which best conveys an attractive, dynamic and professional applicant. The following tips will help.

Say “no” to pronouns and “yes” to verbs

It is understood on a résumé that you are speaking about yourself; therefore it is redundant (and wordy) to use “I” or other personal pronouns when describing your experience. Start with a descriptive verb to convey action and accomplishment.

Example:

Church Music Minister, St. Mary’s Church, Rochester NY (2003-2005)

- Directed adult choir, increased membership by 50% the second year
- Founded and directed children’s choir
- Managed all aspects of choir, including budgeting, rehearsals, planning, and library management
- Created the first combined choirs ecumenical spring concert

Make a Tense Decision

Notice in the above example that the verbs chosen all work with the understood pronoun “I”. The use of past tense conveys a sense of accomplishment: all of these achievements have been successfully completed and are now a part of the applicant’s experience.

Some people use present tense to describe positions that they currently hold. If you decide to use present tense, be sure to make it clear that you are still performing the activity you describe. Do not arbitrarily shift from past to present tense, which indicates a lack of professional foresight and revision. Whatever tense you use, make sure it works with the understood “I”.

Example:

Private Piano Teacher, Pittsford NY (2005-Present)

- Teach elementary students, plan lessons, establish repertoire and program recitals

Action Verbs

Beginning with a verb conveys immediately an energetic, capable applicant – someone who will perform well. However, some verbs work better than others, and you should put some thought into selecting them. You want to choose a verb that says precisely what you have done and emphasizes your accomplishments and skills. Notice the difference between the following descriptions of the same job:

- Worked on audition process
- Revised and streamlined audition process

Both descriptions express action, but the latter grabs the reader by being more concrete, specific and positive. An even better entry might read:

- Introduced innovative and successful changes into audition process, including scheduling simplification.

But all three descriptions, because they start with verbs, work better than the lifeless and worn-out “responsibilities included.”

Here is a short list of Action Verbs to help you get started:

created

started, conceived, designed, developed, established, expanded, founded, generated, implemented, initiated, introduced, invented, launched, opened, organized, originated, produced, set up taught trained, rehearsed, instructed, tutored, directed, coached, conducted, briefed, informed, prepared, advised, familiarized, counseled, discussed, acquainted, guided, lead, drilled did conducted, directed, produced, developed, participated, provided wrote

composed, arranged, edited, recorded, researched, reported, summarized supervised administered, controlled, coordinated, delegated, demonstrated, directed, guided, instructed, led, managed, monitored, ordered, oversaw, programmed, scheduled, trained evaluated

adjudicated, judged, assessed, analyzed, conceived, conceptualized, compared, defined estimated, forecasted, inspected, interpreted, observed, pinpointed, recommended, reviewed, projected, solved, strategy, surveyed, updated assisted advised, carried out, consulted, notified, observed, performed, supported changed influenced, encouraged, innovated, motivated, promoted, persuaded, stimulated, supported, reduced, cut, altered, eliminated, expanded, increased, negotiated, adapted, adjusted, improved, modeled, proposed, reconciled, revamped, revised

put together

assembled, built, compiled, coordinated, effected, engaged, gathered, implemented, maintained, organized, planned, prepared, researched, selected, structured achieved

attained, completed, dealt, effected chose brought, enlisted, selected, ordered communicated consulted, contacted, interviewed, investigated, lectured efficiency

accelerated, expedited, applied, maintained, mastered, reinforced

A thesaurus can quickly become helpful in finding the best verb.

Catering Your Résumé to the Position

As with a cover letter, try to picture the kind of person who would be perfect for the position you want, then emphasize the skills and experiences you possess that make you resemble that picture. In other words, bring out what the employer wants to see.

When you are applying for teaching positions at schools that are looking more for teachers and less for performers, be sure to highlight experiences related to planning, organizing and teaching. Don't allow extensive performance experience, though important, to obscure your qualifications as a teacher; where appropriate highlight and succinctly summarize long lists of performances. When you do describe other experiences, try to relate them to teaching. The parallel is true when applying for positions at schools and conservatories that you know are looking for someone with a strong performance profile. However, finding the balance to show that you are a well-rounded performer and teacher can also be important.

Order

The order of your résumé categories should reflect the position you are applying for and your level of experience. For a person with years of teaching experience, that is the first category an employer would want to read. However, for a teacher who has just graduated and does not have much teaching experience, education is the first category an employer would want to read. As you gain experience, you will rearrange your categories and add new listings and delete the older ones.

When writing a teaching résumé, the most important area is “Teaching Experience.” It is important to include more details in this section than in others. Some things to consider including are age and levels of your students, concerts or masterclasses you organized, programs you developed or designed, any materials you created or updated, and students who won competitions, scholarships or attended music schools. Be sure to include all your teaching experiences, including non-music teaching, tutoring, camp counseling, assistant teaching, rehearsal conducting and coaching. All your experiences count even if it was unpaid.

If you do not have a lot of teaching experience, be sure to emphasize any training or education that has prepared you to be a teacher. Also, include other experiences that may relate to teaching, such as special skills, interests, or volunteer work that could interest the employer.

Other Considerations

When possible, you might want to consider subtly including additional information about your musical background and approach. For example, you might want to include some repertoire highlights (especially if you have some extra space) for some of your performances.

STYLE

Letterhead

The top of your résumé should include your name, address, and contact information, including telephone number and email address. Try to create a “letterhead” that will help your résumé stand out from others. You don’t need anything too flashy, but the use of something that is pleasing to the eye and reflects your overall style can also be used on your other submitted materials to give a professional, uniformed look.

Some examples of letterheads:

Overall Look

Make sure that the fonts you use are easy to read. You don’t want to make your reader squint to read too-small print. You also want to avoid too-large print, which looks elementary and seems to be striving to fill space.

Similarly, choose a font style that looks professional. Don’t play around with creative fonts as they distract and often annoy readers. Some good examples of font styles are Arial, Times New Roman, and Verdana.

Whatever font style and size you choose, remember to be consistent. Don’t switch from one to the other throughout your résumé, even to distinguish between category headings and entries. Instead, use bold, CAPS, or underlining to highlight important categories or subcategories. If you do decide to change font size as a means of distinguishing, make sure the difference is subtle and doesn’t call attention to itself rather than the content.

The overall goal for readers is to find information easily. They should be able to quickly skip down the page to any category.

What a final résumé might look like...

THE FINISHED PRODUCT

Creating an effective résumé requires time and careful revision. Once you have completed your résumé, take some time away from it to achieve distance. Then come back to it with a critical eye to see if it conveys a good candidate for the kind of position you want. Ask your teachers and colleagues to read your résumé and give you their impressions. Different opinions on the finished product can help you shape it further. However, remember, like musical tastes, there can be a range of opinions on what produces the most successful document. Don't be afraid to make it your own with your own unique style.

Paper

You should invest in high-quality bond paper – it need not be too expensive, but should be better than regular photocopy paper. Choose an attractive color, one that is easy on the eye (e.g. off-white, ivory, pale grey). We strongly caution you against choosing a “loud” color (chartreuse, hot pink, etc.) as a way to “stand out.” Using such colors will attract notice but will also scream “look at me!” as if the content might not be enough to grab a reader's attention. Think carefully before making such a choice. (Note: going with white bond paper may actually be one way of standing out since most résumés today are printed on light, non-white shades.)

Emailing your résumé

Many employers now accept résumés and cover letters electronically by email or by uploading it to their website. When emailing or uploading your résumé to a potential employer, send the document as a PDF. When emailing Word documents, the different versions of Word can change your formatting, font size and style to something other than what you intended. Be cautious of this and use PDF's whenever possible.

Letters of Recommendation

Many schools looking to hire new teachers require that transcripts and letters of recommendation be submitted along with a résumé and cover letter. An easy way to send all of these documents together in the same packet is to use Interfolio.com. The Office of Careers and Professional Development has partnered with Interfolio to offer an online credential file service. This service allows file holders control over their files 24/7. Once you have created an account, you can upload your own résumés and cover letters. Consider opening a credential file with Interfolio.com before you graduate from Eastman. It can also be opened as an alumnus, however, if you open the file while you are enrolled, you will be eligible for a free account. Contact the Office of Careers and Professional Development for more information.

Your credential file generally consists of your letters of references and unofficial transcript (must be initially requested from the Office of the Registrar). You can also add to your file your CV and cover letter. This would allow you to be able to send one package to the position you are applying for. Additionally, if you have certification documents, copies of these can also be uploaded as part of your file.

Some job applications will require a credential file in the initial stages of a job application. If you are applying for many jobs, as a courtesy to your referents, you should set up an Interfolio credential file. It saves your referents the trouble of having to write the same letter for each of your job applications. Once you know that a letter from your referent has actually arrived in your file, you can be confident that it will be sent out to arrive in a timely manner. Until a letter has arrived in your placement file, do not assume that a letter has been written or sent, despite assurances that it has! Most letter writers have the best intentions, but are often swamped with a variety of duties, including writing letters of recommendation for people other than you. You can check to see if a letter has been uploaded by logging into your Interfolio account. Make sure they have enough time to write a good letter on your behalf.

Letters of Recommendation

Choose referents you are confident will write stellar letters for you, and who will take the time to “go to bat” for you. The referents should know your work well, and should not necessarily be “big names”. When asking these people for letters of reference, ask them if they would feel comfortable writing a good letter of reference on your behalf. Depending on their response, you can choose whether or not to have that letter sent out. By choosing your referents carefully, you retain a large degree of control over the quality of your credential file.

Confidential letters are highly recommended. They generally carry much more weight in a committee's mind. If you choose to have confidential references placed in your file, the only thing that you can be told about your file is whether or not the letter has arrived. Confidential references allow your writers to speak openly and candidly about your skills. So choose carefully!!!

References that date back more than five years are not considered current, but can still be used. However, you should bear in mind that old references do not represent your current level of work and achievement.

Résumé Checklist

As you consider the effectiveness of your résumé, ask yourself the following questions. A "yes" answer to each question will ensure that you have created a professional looking document.

1. Have I adequately covered all of the work experiences and skills (including transferrable skills) relevant to the position?
2. Does the order of my résumé emphasize my suitability for the position?
3. Is the format appropriate and easy to follow?
4. Have I used strong, active verbs to describe my experience?
5. Have I avoided mere listing ("responsibilities included")?
6. Have I achieved consistency of point of view, verb tense, categorical form and chronology?
7. Have I avoided wordiness and redundancy?
8. Is the résumé attractive and easy to read in terms of style, font, and format?
9. Have I thoroughly proofread for grammatical, typographical and mechanical errors?
10. Have I used high quality paper and printing for a polished final product? Or created an attractive pdf document?

THE FINAL STEP
